

Fly Camps

Overview

Blyx is a modular platform designed to meet the real-world demands of temporary and remote sites—like Fly Camps. You only install what you need, when you need it. Start simple and scale up as your site's needs evolve, whether your priority is energy savings, operational efficiency, or improving the guest experience.

Flexible by Design: Build What You Need, When You Need It

The foundation of a Blyx system typically begins with environment controllers. These devices monitor and manage room conditions remotely—reducing energy consumption, improving guest comfort, and using human presence detection to confirm occupancy or flag abnormal activity. It's a simple but powerful first step that delivers immediate operational benefits.

To enhance security and speed up maintenance tasks, you can easily add Quick Change Barrels. If a key is lost, there's no need to replace the entire handle or wait for new keys to be cut—just swap out the barrel in minutes, keeping rooms secure and your team moving.

Next, electronic lockers can streamline the check-in process. Staff simply preload keys into lockers, and guests retrieve them independently using the Blyx App or RFID devices. This saves valuable staff time and offers guests a seamless arrival experience.

And while electronic access control isn't typically part of a Fly Camp setup—and may not suit all sites due to infrastructure limitations—Blyx is ready for it if your needs change. With WiFi bridge connectivity, full digital keyless entry can be added later without reworking your entire setup. It's a future-proof option you can grow into, not a requirement to get started.

Why Blyx Works for Fly Camps

Blyx is built for the realities of Fly Camps—limited infrastructure, minimal connectivity, and multitasking staff. It operates offline, automates routine tasks, and supports proactive maintenance to prevent equipment failures. From reducing energy use on generator-powered sites to simplifying lost key replacements, Blyx helps your camp run smarter with less effort.

Blyx doesn't just make your site smarter, it typically delivers ROI within three years.
